

<http://web.archive.org/web/20090623235643/http://www.eport2passport.com/index.html>

Our Mission

A critical mission of higher education is to produce productive global citizens that are dedicated to developing a just, equitable and sustainable society. How can we introduce to our first-year through the senior-year college students the best practices for developing a global mindset in preparation for their future leadership roles?

One academic solution is the production of an e-portfolio, which encompasses a reflective or private portfolio for self-reflection on learning and transformational thinking on global issues and the production of a best of show portfolio or public portfolio, to begin conversations to connect and make a positive difference in the world. With the sophisticated development and rhetorical implication of technology, the e-portfolio is an efficient mode of delivery and an effective method of pedagogy for the designer and the intended reader. E-portfolios are used as a reflective tool and as an effective means for initiating conversations and actions with others about the value of developing an international perspective and becoming a more responsible global citizen. View of our academic scholarship on ePortfolios and the foliothinking process embracing our global citizenship mission.

M. Leigh Funk, Ph.D
Web Architect & Contributor
2003-Present

Dr. Joan E. Leichter Dominick
Web Contributor
2003-Present

SITE NAVIGATION

- > Home Page
- > About Us
- > Resources
- > Bookmark Links
- > Teaching
- > Presentations
- > Proposals
- > Research
- > Contact Us
- > Online Journal

Current Activities

- > 3/2/04 SITE Presentation
- > 3/18/05 AAHE Presentation
- > 7/12/05 IFYE Presentation
- > 10/29/05 NCHC Presentation
- > 4/7/06 Villa Julie College National Career Conference